

Next Green Wave Completes Construction of its Advanced Cannabis Production Facility in California

And Announces Management Repositioning to Spearhead Research and Innovation Division

Vancouver, British Columbia — January 14, 2019 — Next Green Wave Holdings Inc. (CSE:NGW) (OTCQB:NXGWF) ("Next Green Wave" or the "Company"), announces that it has completed all major structural construction on its first indoor cannabis production facility in Coalinga, California, and mobilized crews to connect all infrastructure to Pacific Gas and Electric's (PG&E) power grid.

PG&E has commenced work to trench and install power cables from the local substation to connect to the facility. The installation is expected to be completed within a few weeks and will be subject to a final city inspection for the issuance of an occupancy permit. The permit is the final step to allow the Company to begin production.

Further to Next Green Wave's facility update, the Company is pleased to announce a management repositioning to forge the Company's new Research and Innovation division and accelerate its premium cannabis products to the market.

The Board has appointed Mr. Leigh Hughes as the Chief Executive Officer in addition to his position as Executive Chairman. Mr. Michael Jennings will transition into the role of Chief Operations Officer and Head of Research and Innovation.

Mr. Jennings commented: "This is a vital time for the Company as we move into the production phase, I'm excited to step into this new role to advance our research and development and push the innovation envelope to establish Next Green Wave as world-class nursery."

"This is a major advancement having Michael become the head of operations and lead our new research and innovation division in developing new cultivars to add to our genetic archive. I'm looking forward to taking ownership of this additional role and focus my efforts on our growth strategy and mergers and acquisition opportunities." said Leigh Hughes, Executive Chairman and Chief Executive Officer.
