16. Provide details of any changes in directors, officers or committee members. N/A
17. Discuss any trends which are likely to impact the Issuer including trends in the Issuer's market(s) or political/regulatory trends. The results of exploration programs as well as the outlook for world uranium and rare earth element ("REE") production and market prices affect the stock market price of the Company's shares. Prices for critical REEs have increased significantly in the past year, as a shortage is developing, largely a result of the increase in electric vehicle production. China is restricting the production of REEs by not renewing mining licenses for small (largely unregulated miners).

At Elliot Lake, Ontario, the economic value of the Company's NI 43-101 reported resources is dependent, among other factors, on the market price and the demand outlook for uranium and REEs, as these can be mined together in one underground mining operation. China virtually controls the pricing of REEs. Actual production statistics are difficult to assess.

Spot uranium prices in 2018 increased by about 20% to a current US$30 per lb. Production cutbacks by Cameco and Kazatomprom, the largest uranium producer in Kazakhstan, (largely selling at spot prices) have reduced the supply side. Kazatomprom reduced its production by 20% in 2018, expected to continue for a period of three years. Cameco is using excess inventory to supply its contractual delivery commitments, as the cost of mining far exceeds the spot price. Cameco is expected to purchase an additional 30 million pounds on the spot market in 2019.

The uranium demand forecast is not expected to increase in the near future, but by 2021 known supply sources are projected to be unable to match demand. Industry opinion is that a minimum long-term contract price of US$60 is needed before any new mining project will advance.

64 reactors are reported to be under construction around the world. Nine of 36 operable reactors in Japan resumed operation in 2018.

Reactor operators have adopted a wait-and-see attitude on price and are not building their stockpiles to "normal" levels. China has 42 operating nuclear reactors with an additional 16 units under construction and has plans to build another 43 units to reduce the use of coal, which is currently used to supply 70% of its electricity. China has an ongoing program of closing coal mines.

The political stability of countries currently supplying the REE and uranium market has caused concern in the United States, as very little uranium for reactors is sourced domestically, with a similar situation for the supply of critical REEs required by the defence industry and for electronics. Washington has decreed that the critical REEs for the manufacture of permanent magnets must not be sourced from China.

In response to US sanctions, Russia has threatened to halt enriched uranium exports to the US. Russia provides 14% of the US requirement, but Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan provide an additional 24% and 4% respectively. The threat has had no effect on the quoted spot price.
