Currently, consumers can use numerous applications to find the best prices and selection of cannabis in the 28 United States where cannabis is legal. Millions of cannabis consumers are using data from major mobile apps such as Leafly, Weedmaps and Massroots to find the strain, price and location of a nearby dispensary, which has exactly what the consumer is looking for. As the Cannabis markets expand, business owners will increasingly use applications to draw in customers and differentiate themselves from the competition.

“With the success of major mobile apps such as Leafy, Weedmaps and Massroots in the Cannabis space, we feel that we are in the right place at the right time to develop our own Cannabis apps,” says Mikael Hovhannisyan, the Company’s app portfolio manager. “We are excited to have released our first mobile application in the cannabis space, now available for download on the iPhone”
