17. Trends Impacting the Company

Natural resource exploration is a speculative venture. There is no certainty that expenditure on exploration and development will result in the discovery of a producing oil well or economic ore body. The Company's viability and potential success lie in its ability to lease, develop and generate revenue from oil reserves and/or mineral deposits. Revenues, profitability and cash flow from any future resource operations involving the Company will be influenced by oil & gas and/or metal prices and by the relationship of such prices to production costs. Such prices have fluctuated widely and are affected by numerous factors beyond the Company's control. The Company has limited financial resources and there is no assurance that additional funding will be available to it for further exploration and development of its projects or to fulfill its obligations under applicable agreements. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to obtain adequate financing in the future or that the terms of such financing will be favourable. Failure to obtain such additional financing could result in delay or indefinite postponement of further exploration and development of the property interests of the Company with the possible dilution or loss of such interests. BDR is dependent upon the personal efforts and commitment of its existing management who are not all full-time employees of the Company. To the extent that management's services would be unavailable for any reason, the Company's operations could be disrupted. The Company may retain the services of outside consultants from time to time.
