NEWS RELEASE

FUTURE FARM PREPARES MAINE-GROWN HEMP BIOMASS AND SEEDS FOR PROCESSING AND MARKET

November 22, 2019 – Vancouver, British Columbia –Future Farm Technologies Inc. (CSE: FFT) (OTCQB: FFRMF) is pleased to announce that it has completed the drying and curing phase of its crop of hemp and seeds in Maine. Both crops achieved yields that outpace the Company’s current apparatus for seed extraction, plant bucking, processing and storage.

To address the success of this year’s harvest, Future Farm is in the process of acquiring more robust seed extraction and cleaning equipment, additional resources for storage and transportation and larger industrial scales.

"These early findings are great news for us and as we look to meet the needs of our robust pipeline of carefully curated and diverse customers," comments William Gildea, CEO of Future Farm. "The abundance of product enables us to service the demand for seeds, biomass, oils, extracts and contract manufacturing."
