Global Blockchain Mining Launches Reddit Channel for Questions About the Company

As part of FORK's new communications strategy, the Company has launched a company forum on Reddit, where shareholders may ask questions and interact with the Company's team and each other in an open forum. FORK staff will be monitoring, answering questions and responding to comments on a weekly basis.

Vancouver, BC, November 19, 2018 — GLOBAL BLOCKCHAIN MINING CORP. (CSE: FORK) (OTC: GBCHF) ("FORK" or the "Company") announces that in response to an overwhelming volume of investor inquiry about the Company's current developments and revised business strategies, it has created an open forum to answer questions and help clarify the Company's initiatives.

As indicated on its recently-updated website, FORK has diversified its operations beyond the mining of cryptocurrencies. FORK will operate servicenodes and masternodes on select blockchain networks, enabling it to earn transaction fees. Additionally, the Company's computing facilities will provide witness services for consensus protocols. Further, some of its management team's members are providing consulting and advisory services to select entities as clients.

Going forward, FORK's Reddit channel (also known as a "subreddit") will be an all-purpose discussion forum for matters relating to FORK in the interest of providing greater transparency about the Company and its activities. The Reddit channel will be a medium whereby members can engage in conversation with FORK staff and also with each other.

FORK's new forum can be found at the following URL: <https://www.reddit.com/r/ForkCSE>. The Company's presence on Reddit will complement its existing channels that include email support, and phone communication channels.

President and CEO of the Company Shidan Gouran commented, "We care about what our shareholders have to say, and we believe that by offering an open public forum in which their questions can be answered, we will deliver even more value to them. Our Company has undergone a number of key changes over the past couple of months, and we know that there are many questions about these changes. For that reason, we have created an open forum on Reddit to clarify investor enquiries to the benefit of the whole community, and we look forward to answering questions about FORK as they come up."
