Marapharm Ventures Inc., Nevada Construction Milestones

Marapharm Ventures Inc. "Marapharm" announces construction in Las Vegas has hit a series of critical milestones. The building shells are complete, the concrete has been poured, the buildings have been insulated, and interior framing has begun. The buildings have double the amount of insulation as required by code to keep operating costs in the Nevada environment as low as possible. The concrete slabs are designed with state of the art heating and cooling infrastructure to lower operating costs and to enhance the growing environment, which will place less demand on the HVAC system.

All equipment and initial operating supplies have been ordered, with delivery expected in the next few weeks, including industry leading lighting from Solis-Tek Lighting Corp custom engineered rolling 'Soma-Style' cultivation bins and a custom soil blend made by Essential Agronomy from Oregon for the cultivation operation. Closed loop extraction equipment from Extraction Tek will be installed for the manufacturing operation. The entire facility will benefit from a custom engineered HVAC system that uses a combination of SURNA indoor water chilled fan coils and dehumidifiers. These will be fueled by outdoor propane powered engines with proprietary Italian made heat exchange technology.

"The buildings we have are state of the art and have been custom designed to be flexible and expandable with redundancy across our operations to assure that harvests will be protected. Operating costs are estimated at 20% less than a conventional system. Our infrastructure and equipment investments reflect decisions to use the best-of-breed. We are in this for the long term and these facilities will enable us to create a top quality product that will yield the highest return for our shareholders",
Linda Sampson, Marapharm CEO.
