Most provincial governments have developed specific guidelines to ensure a slow and steady path for businesses to start reopening amidst the pandemic, including physical distancing measures, engineering controls (like plexiglass barriers for example), administrative controls, and the use of personal protective equipment. The HeyBryan app has hundreds of vetted handyman experts in the GTA, BC's Lower Mainland, and the city of Calgary, ready and available to help businesses comply with these new guidelines.

"Not only does HeyBryan connect homeowners with experts to complete small household tasks, it's also here to help businesses in the retail or restaurant space with necessary enhancements or repairs," said Lance Montgomery, CEO of HeyBryan. "We wanted to let business owners know HeyBryan is here if they're looking for qualified handymen to help install plexiglass barriers or make other physical changes to their workplace."

HeyBryan is free to download and is available on both Apple and Android devices.
