Liht Cannabis Corp. Responds To Veritas News Release

Liht Cannabis Corp. (CSE: LIHT) (OTCQX: LIHTF) or the “Company”) today responds to the claim made against the Company by Veritas Pharma Inc. (“Veritas”).

On March 4, 2019, Veritas Pharma Inc., filed a Notice of Claim against the Company for recovery of a loan of $1 million. October 13th, 2018, the terms of repayment of the loan were settled. Veritas by filing the Notice of Claim has reneged on the repayment terms.

History

Veritas had claimed that they were a discovery and development company, advancing the science behind medical marijuana. They brought together a highly accredited team of pharmacologists, anesthetists and chemists with substantial success in both academia and industry, specifically in drug development. They had a laboratory at the University of British Columbia (UBC) where they were applying a comprehensive scientific approach to medical marijuana claims.

Veritas’s mission has been to develop the most effective proprietary cannabis strains for specific disease conditions and to provide doctors and patients with conclusive science evidence to recommend and use medical marijuana with confidence.

We believed in the Veritas business model and the beneficial synergy between our companies. As a result, in 2017, we provided capital to Veritas to execute their business plan by investing $1,350,000 CDN through two private placements. The Company acquired shares and share purchase warrants of Veritas for support and investment purposes and still retains significant securities of Veritas.

The Company will be filing a response to the Notice of Claim filed by Veritas.

“We had anticipated a mutual settlement agreement between us. We are extremely disappointed with the deterioration of the relationship between our companies. We share mutual values, ethics and research goals in this shared cannabis space. It would have been our preference to reach an agreement and to move forward amicably.” Rahim Mohamed, CEO
