San Jose Wellness (SJW), Patients Mutual Assistance Collective Corporation (PMACC), and FLRish, Inc.

As previously disclosed, the Issuer’s subsidiary San Jose Wellness Solutions Corp. (“SJW”) is involved in two U.S. Tax Court cases involving application of Internal Revenue Code Section 280E (“IRC Section 280E”) to the business of SJW. The first case involves the 2010, 2011, and 2012 tax years, where the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) has asserted a tax deficiency of $2.1 million. The second case involves the 2014 and 2015 tax years, where the IRS asserted that SJW owed an additional $2.1 million in taxes and penalties. Both proceedings involve substantially the same IRC Section 280E issues as the cases involving the Issuer’s subsidiary, Patient Mutual Assistance Collective Corporation (“PMACC”), as previously reported. On February 17, 2021, the U.S. Tax Court ruled in favor of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue with respect to the SJW cases. SJW appealed the U.S. Tax Court decisions and subsequently filed a motion to withdraw its appeal in July 2021. On April 5, 2023, a payment plan application was presented to the IRS for SJW.

On July 20, 2022, PMACC entered into a Partial Payment Instalment Agreement (the “Agreement”) with the IRS to resolve federal taxes owed by PMACC of approximately $22.1 million. Under the Agreement, StateHouse is resolving this liability through the payment of approximately US$5.8 million, to be made through US$50,000 per-month payments over an expected period of 116 months, beginning in August 2022. The monthly payment amount is subject to IRS review every two years. With each review, the payments may adjust up or down depending on PMACC’s ability to pay at that time. The Issuer does not anticipate that such reviews will result in a material increase to the payment plan.
