

VirtualArmour Wins $98K Professional Services Contract with Global Gemological Organization

CENTENNIAL, Colo., May 30, 2019 -- VirtualArmour International Inc. (CSE:VAI) (OTCQB:VTLR), a premier cybersecurity managed services provider, has expanded its security services engagement with a leading global gemological organization with more than 18 research and laboratory centers around the world. The contract value for the additional professional security services totals more than $98,000 over the next 12 months.

This professional services contract is in addition to the managed Palo Alto Networks firewall solution that was implemented earlier this year. This deployment will include a firewall security policy review and optimization with a senior VirtualArmour engineer. VirtualArmour won this contract over multiple competitors.

"This opportunity leverages our highly-trained engineers that the client would not have access to otherwise based on limited internal resources and they can now better support growth and expansion while maintaining best-in-class cybersecurity," said VirtualArmour CEO, Russ Armbrust. "Our professional services will allow the client to improve the security of their firewalls and in return strengthen their entire security posture."
