

Axios Expands Service Area with Two New Contracts in Southeastern United States

Mississauga, Ontario, October 6, 2015 – Axios Mobile Assets (CSE:AXA; OTCQB:AXBSF) (“Axios” or the “Company”) is pleased to announce that it has received contracts to supply its proprietary pallet-based logistics system to two egg producers in the US state of Georgia. The new long-term agreements bring the total number of long-term contracts announced by Axios since 2014 to six and extend the Company’s service area into the southeastern United States.

Axios personnel are scheduled to assist the producers with system implementation in mid-October and the Company expects to ship the first pallets to them by the end of the month.

“These two contracts are the first for Axios in the southeastern United States and give us a regional presence in one of the country’s most important centers of perishable food production,” stated Axios Mobile Assets CEO Richard MacDonald. “We are on track with our growth plan for 2015, having expanded from our Midwest starting point to the Northeast, and now into the Southeast. As we gain footholds in more regions it brings the opportunity to service new farms and support the transportation of different perishable foods.”

Axios provides a comprehensive transport logistics solution to its customers with lightweight, 100% recyclable composite pallets backed by an integrated data management system. Featuring an easy-to-use dashboard, the system enables users to access information about location and a variety of shipment conditions. It has been adopted by some of the leading regional egg producers in the United States

The Company’s shares also trade on the Canadian Securities Exchange under the symbol AXA. Quotes are available at <http://www.cnsx.ca/CNSX/Securities/Technology/Axios-Mobile-Assets-Corp.aspx>.
