Axios Named One of Canada's 20 Most Innovative Public Technology Companies by Canadian Innovation Exchange

Mississauga, Ontario, November 26, 2015 – Axios Mobile Assets (CSE:AXA; OTCQB:AXBSF) (“Axios” or the “Company”) is pleased to announce that it was named one of the 20 most innovative public technology companies in Canada for 2015 by the Canadian Innovation Exchange (“CIX”). The award is presented to Canadian public companies with particularly innovative technology products backed by strong management, excellent service standards and sound business models.

“Axios is honoured to be recognized by the Canadian Innovation Exchange and wishes to thank the organization for this recognition,” said Axios Mobile Assets President and CEO Richard MacDonald. “Our team succeeded in combining several existing technologies to create a transportation logistics solution that was brand new to the market. The Axios system addresses multiple problems within the supply chain for perishable goods, and high value transport sensitive commodities and is experiencing rapid adoption by food producers in the United States.”

Benefits of the Axios system include reduction in food spoilage and significantly enhanced biosecurity standards. The system utilizes sensor-equipped pallets and an easy-to-use client dashboard to monitor location, temperature, vibration and other conditions while food is in shipment.

Richard MacDonald delivered a presentation about the Axios Solution and the outlook for the Company at the CIX Public Investor Day on Wednesday, November 18. The event was held at MaRS Discovery District in downtown Toronto.
