My journey as a professional fighter was an emotional rollercoaster with the highest highs and the lowest lows. I often considered throwing in the towel, before I achieved my lifelong dream of becoming Champion of the World. Having worked with Imagination Park previously on a VR project we did, which turned out exceptional, I fully expect Imagination Park to capture my story with the same passion and drive I implemented throughout my career. We are all very excited to get this going."

Yas Taalat, Chief Creative Officer at Imagination Park stated: "Michael Bisping is one of the most loyal, caring, humble, and talented people I've ever met and to get the chance to work with him and tell his life story is beyond special. This is a guy who had to sleep in his car at times, working towards an opportunity to show the world what he is capable of. Bisping is a special kind of athlete, the real life Rocky Balboa but he is also a compassionate man that cares about his beautiful family deeply and together they've proved nothing can get in their way. This is an amazing story, with amazing people and we are excited to share it with the world."

Gabriel Napora, Chairman of the Board of Imagination Park, added: "Michael is both a friend and colleague. To be able to do a documentary on his life is a great honor. We feel this positions Imagination Park in the sports marketplace for both film and augmented reality."

Acclaimed Director Michael Hamilton, will be directing the project, having just wrapped and premièred the highly anticipated I AM MLK, a feature documentary on the iconic civil rights leader, Martin Luther King, for Paramount Network. "I'm a story teller, so I'm honored to join this creative team to tell the incredible story of Michael Bisping and what he has accomplished in and out of the Octagon."
